

SARAH EMILY BARROW DABB 1855-1930

Sarah Emily Barrow was born 9 March 1855, to Susannah Phillips Dowell and Thomas Carter Barrow in Chili Monroe, Erie, New York. Her siblings included Albert, Gilbert, Treeman Frank, Walter John, Jessie, Herbert, and Ralph.

On 13 October 1872, she married John Dabb in Marilla, Erie, New York. After their marriage, she and John started to make a new home on 21 acres of unlevelled land, about one acre of which was covered with timber.

They lived there for about ten years during which time three children were born to them, daughters Carrie (1873), and Ida (1876), and son Howard (1880). Lucy Jane (1883), Hyrum Moroni (1886), Cora Belle (1889), Clarence George (1892), Evert Adolph (1894), and Phillip Edwin (1901) were born later.

They joined the United Brethren Church at Williston, Erie, New York, and for a time they were satisfied with their religion until a Mormon elder, Mark Hall, appeared at their home and taught them the gospel. They were baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. They decided to join the saints in the west, and about three months later they were in Utah. John and Emily were soon sealed together in the Endowment House in Salt Lake City in 1882.

The Dabbs purchased a 20 acre farm from Pleasant Green Taylor and settled in Harrisville, Utah. They lived in a two-room adobe house for four years and later added additional rooms. John and Emily attended the dedication of the Salt Lake Temple, 10 April 1893. The next year on 11 March, John Dabb left for a mission to the eastern states. He returned 19 October 1894.

John and Sarah lived the rest of their married life in Harrisville and raised their children there.

Sarah died 10 October 1930, and is buried in the Ogden City Cemetery. Her husband died fourteen months later and is buried next to her.
